Investigations of complaints must be performed promptly, and must be answered with a letter informing the involved individuals about the courses of action that Resource One Credit Union will take. Any resulting erasures or corrections must be performed promptly and at no cost to the individuals. Reasonable steps to prevent reoccurrence of the same inaccuracies or incompleteness must also be taken, for instance by adding an explanatory paragraph in the subject's file. An exception to the requirements stated in this paragraph is permitted for personal data in management succession planning records, criminal activity investigation records, and other legitimate business activities where disclosure to the individual would be highly likely to jeopardize the project underway.
 6. Personal data must not be kept in a form that permits identification of individuals for any longer than is necessary for the purposes for which the data was collected or for which it is further processed. For example, this can be implemented with linked separate files respectively containing identification information and related sensitive information. Owners of personal data are responsible for ensuring that items in the preceding points are complied with.

- The individual has provided explicit consent to such processing.
 - Processing is necessary for the purposes of carrying out the obligations and specific rights of the Owner in the field of employment law.

2. Where personal data has not been obtained directly from the individual, the Owner or his or her representative must notify the individual at the time when personal data will be processed. If a disclosure to a third party is anticipated, the individual must be notified no later than the time when the data is disclosed. The Owner must provide the individual with at least the following information, except where the individual already knows it:
- The identity of the Custodian and the Custodian's representative, if any.
 - The purposes of the processing.

- Any further information such as:
 - The categories of data concerned.

Trained personnel who can explain an individual's rights must be available to subjects by telephone.
- 4. If Resource One Credit Union changes its privacy policy, an attempt to notify all individuals must be promptly initiated. As a part of this notification, Resource One Credit Union must provide individuals with a summary of the words that have changed and what these changes mean. Individuals also must be given an opportunity to be removed from Resource One Credit Union records.

Individual's Right Of Access To Data

Every individual has the right to obtain the following from the Custodian:

1. Without undue constraint at reasonable intervals and without excessive delay or expense:
 - Confirmation as to whether data relating to him or her is processed and information at least as to the purposes of the processing, the categories of data concerned, and the recipients or categories of recipients to whom the data is disclosed.
 - Details as to the source of information about the individual, if such information is recorded.
 - Communication of the personal data to the subject in an intelligible form.
 - Knowledge of the logic involved in any automatic processing of data concerning him or her at least in the case of the automated decisions affecting the individual.

3. Notification to third parties to whom the data has been disclosed of any correction, erasure, or blocking carried out in compliance with the prior paragraph, unless this proves impossible or involves a unreasonable effort or expense.

Individual's Right To Object

1. Individuals may object, free of charge, to the processing of personal data that the Owner anticipates will be processed for the purposes of direct marketing. Owners must provide prompt processing mechanisms that permit individuals who objected to be removed from direct marketing lists.
2. Individuals must be informed before personal data is disclosed for the first time to third parties or used on their behalf for the purposes of direct marketing. Individuals must be expressly offered the right to object free of charge to such disclosures or uses. Owners must provide processing mechanisms that permit individuals who objected to block such a disclosure. These disclosures and opt-out notices will be sent to the membership annually.

Disclosure Of Personal Data To Third Parties

1. Resource One Credit Union may provide third parties with personal data processed on its systems for generally accepted business purposes such as court orders, subpoenas, employment verification, governmental licensing, underwriting, and other reasons. All recipients of such information must definitively identify themselves, certify in writing the legal and customary purposes for which the information is sought and certify that the personal data will be used for no other purposes.
2. All disclosures to government agencies and other third parties must be preceded by written or other notice sent to the individual. A blanket, one-time approval of such disclosures is sufficient. Sufficient time must be provided between the receipt of such notice to the individual and the actual disclosure to the third party to permit the individual to object should he or she so elect.

Processing Confidentiality And Security

1. The Owner must implement appropriate technical and organizational measures to protect personal data against accidental or unlawful destruction, accidental loss, unauthorized alteration, and unauthorized disclosure or access. These measures must be consistent with the standards and procedures issued by the Information

Security department.

2. Transfers of private information to another country, no matter what technology is employed, must not take place unless prior approval of the Information Security manager has been obtained. An exception is made in those cases where the individual is, was, or will be located in the destination country, or when the individual has specifically requested such a transfer.
3. Resource One Credit Union information systems or staff must not link anonymous information about individual behavior or activities with personally-identifiable information unless the involved individuals have given their consent. For example, such a linkage could tie Internet shopping purchase information with web browsing logs.
4. The Owner or his or her designated representative must prepare a documented risk assessment to determine the privacy implications of all significantly new or different uses of personal data. Such a risk assessment must be completed before these uses take place, and must include all steps in the proposed processing, including access, storage, transmission, and destruction. Such a risk assessment must include not only consideration of the risks, but also the security measures to be employed such as access controls, encryption, logs, data retention schedules, and data destruction procedures.
5. When building, testing, enhancing, and maintaining processing systems, developers must not use actual personal data. Instead, they must use fictional or sanitized personal data that preserves the essential characteristics of the data, but that does not relate to identifiable individuals. In emergency situations where processing with actual personal data is required, use of such information is permitted under strict security procedures defined by Information Security.
6. All user access to processing systems and networks containing personal data must be logged so that every recent access to personal data can be traced to a specific user. Custodians of these systems and networks are responsible for the routine monitoring of such logs and the follow-up on potential security-relevant events.
7. When not in use, personal data must be stored in encrypted form if held in a computer or network, or in locked or similarly secured containers if held in paper, microfiche, or other non-computerized form. When sent over public computer networks such as the Internet, personal data must be protected by encryption. Procedures and standards issued by Information Security provide additional details on these topics.

8. When they are no longer needed, all copies of personal data, including those on backup tapes, must be irreversibly destroyed according to standards and procedures defined by the Information Security department. A document describing the personal data destroyed and the reasons for such destruction must be prepared for each destruction process, and promptly submitted to the relevant Owner. Permission to destroy personal data may be granted by only the Owner, and only if all legal retention requirements and related business purposes have been met.
9. The use of cookies, web bugs, images, and other techniques to covertly gather information about individuals who use the Internet is incompatible with this policy. Whenever Resource One Credit Union gathers information about individuals, these same subjects must have agreed upon the collection effort in advance. For this same reason, Resource One Credit Union does not deposit cookie files on individual hard drives or does not perform any other covert recording of the Internet activity in which individuals have engaged.
10. Resource One Credit Union streamlines and expedites all of its computerized business interactions with individuals, but at the same time to be forthright and clear about its privacy policies. To support these objectives and to encourage individuals to use Internet commerce sites and other computerized business systems, Resource One Credit Union adopts and supports all generally-accepted standards for web content rating, web site privacy protection, and Internet commerce security, including third-party seals of approval.
11. Resource One Credit Union does not use externally-meaningful identifiers as its own internal individual account numbers. For example, to prevent identity theft, Resource One Credit Union customer account numbers must never be equivalent to social security numbers, driver's license numbers, or any other identifier that might be used in an unauthorized fashion by a third party.

Monitoring Of Internal Activities

1. In general terms, Resource One Credit Union does not engage in blanket monitoring of internal communications. It does, however, reserve the right at any time to monitor, access, retrieve, read, or disclose internal communications when a legitimate business need exists that cannot be satisfied by other means, the involved individual is unavailable and timing is critical to a business activity, there is reasonable cause to suspect criminal activity or policy violation, or monitoring is required by law, regulation, or third-party agreement.
2. At any time, Resource One Credit Union may log web sites visited, files downloaded, and related information exchanges over the Internet. Resource One Credit Union may record the numbers dialed for telephone calls placed through its telephone systems. Department managers may receive reports detailing the usage of these and other internal information systems, and are responsible for determining that such usage is both reasonable and business-related.
3. All files and messages stored on Resource One Credit Union processing systems are routinely backed up to tape, disk, and other storage media. This means that information stored on Resource One Credit Union information processing systems, even if a worker has specifically deleted it, is often recoverable and may be examined at a later date by system administrators and others designated by management.
4. At any time and without prior notice, Resource One Credit Union management reserves the right to examine archived electronic mail, personal computer file directories, hard disk drive files, and other information stored on Resource One Credit Union information processing systems. This information may include personal data. Such examinations are typically performed to assure compliance with internal policies, support the performance of internal investigations, and assist with the management of Resource One Credit Union information processing systems.

Privacy Notices

Resource One must provide an initial notice of its privacy policy to its members at the time an account is opened and then annually.

NOTE: Resource One is not required to send annual Privacy Notices to members as we only share members' nonpublic personal information within the exceptions provided by the Gramm–Leach–Bliley Act (GLBA); we have also not changed our policies or procedures with respect to the disclosure of nonpublic personal information since the last privacy notice was provided to its consumers.

Resource One must provide a notice of its privacy policies and allow a consumer to opt out of the disclosure of his/her non-public personal information to a nonaffiliated 3rd party.

Special Rule for Loans

Resource One must provide an initial notice to a co-borrower or guarantor on a consumer related loan, who has no other relationship with the credit union if it shares the nonpublic personal information with nonaffiliated third parties other than allowed by law.

Initial Privacy Notice to Members

The notice must be clear and conspicuous and accurately reflect the credit union's privacy policies and practices to all members not later than when the member relationship is established. The following is a list of disclosures regarding nonpublic personal information that Resource One must provide in their privacy notices as applicable:

- Categories of information collected
- Categories of information disclosed
- Categories of affiliates and nonaffiliated third parties to whom the credit union may disclose information
- Policies with respect to the treatment of former members' information

- Any opt out notices we must provide under the Fair Credit Reporting Act with respect to affiliate information sharing

- Policies for protecting the security and confidentiality of information
- A statement that Resource One makes disclosures to other nonaffiliated third parties as permitted by law

Subsequent privacy notices are permitted when:

- The member relationship is not established at the member's election (i.e. in the case of a credit union acquiring the consumer's account through a purchase or merger)
- To do otherwise would substantially delay the member's transaction, and the member agrees to subsequent delivery (i.e. in the case of a student loan or establishing the account by phone).
